This is SLEEK News. On our news page, we discuss the latest fashion and design updates such as campaigns, shows, products, and special editions we want to share with our community.

Jeremy "Mourning Opulence"

Filled with extravagance, fantasy, lust and sensitivity, Jeremy presents his debut solo exhibition at Peres Projects in Berlin. Titled "Mourning Opulence", the exhibition takes a trail off of heteronormativity, shedding a queer veil over his work inspired by mythology and video games. At the centre of Jeremy's work stands gender identity, exploring the masculine body and its representation, as sexless and sexual, liberating and proactive all become one in his art.

"Mourning Opulence" is running at Peres Projects from February 17th to March 17th.
