TAN MU'S DAWN X PERES PROJECTS

In DAWN, the subjects of Tan Mu's compositions cover an enormous range of topics—from the embryo, the privacy stamp, and the logic circuit to the solar farm, the atomic bomb, and the earth itself—and draw our attention to important cultural markers of our time. The artist's primary sources are both archival and contemporary, viewing life through the lens of humanity's evolutionary history and aspirations. She explores cycles and the pursuit of incremental developments in people's lives. Like the cell biologist who visualizes the most complex parts of the body, DAWN keeps up with the pace of the humanities – always striving, pushing, and reaching into the unknown.
