Peres Projects, Berlin presents “Natural Selections,” a solo exhibition of new paintings by American artist Dan Attoe, on display through February 24, 2017.

With this new body of works, on view for the first time, we see the artist’s practice evolve as Attoe embraces a more rebellious and impressionistic painting style – a departure from his previous works which focused on a stricter sense of precision. These new paintings capture the wild and chaotic topography of the Northwest coast of America; some of the imagery is culled from actual locations, others are a total fiction created instead from memory, impression, and a fusion of several environments the artist has traveled to over the years.

The exhibition is displayed at Peres Projects, Karl-Marx-Allee 82, 10243 Berlin, Germany.
