

Dan Attoe's 'Natural Selection' at Peres Projects, Berlin

BY HANS SCHNEIDER | DECEMBER 08, 2016

Dan ATTOE Natural Selections Installation view December 16–February 24, 2017 Peres Projects, Berlin
(Courtesy: Don Attoe)

RELATED

VENUES

Peres Projects

ARTISTS

Dan Attoe

Peres Projects in Berlin will host an exhibition titled “Natural Selection” by Dan Attoe from December 16, 2016 through February 24, 2017.

Presenting a series of new paintings by American artist Dan Attoe, the exhibition represents the evolution of the artist’s practice. Attoe has embraced a more rebellious and impressionistic painting style — a departure from his previous works which focused on a stricter sense of precision. The show presents the vastness, power, and melancholy of nature’s landscapes — the wild and chaotic topography of the Northwest coast of America.

Though some of the imagery is culled from actual locations, others are pure fantasy created from memory, impression, and a fusion of several environments the artist traveled to over the years.

“Natural Selection” is on display at Peres Projects, Karl-Marx-Allee 82, 10243 Berlin, Germany.

For details, visit: <http://peresprojects.com/>